

Biography

Born in Lucerne, Switzerland on September 21, 1974

"After collaborating with many artist and architects I focus mainly on my own work now. I have a strong interest in site specificity, geometry and time. All my work should relate to something bigger or something outside its direct context. It should connect humans to space, to matter, and to the social and urban environment, ideally to the cosmos. It often revolves around the desire to give a physical presence to something that is not physical." Christian Wassmann

In 2005, Christian Wassmann opened his own office in SoHo where he works with a small and talented team. His most visible venture is the East Village Radio station on 1st Avenue, which was nominated for the Swiss Art Award in 2007. He also designed The Byrd Hoffman Watermill Foundation gallery and offices in DUMBO, a beauty salon on Houston Street, a clothing store on Lafayette St., an apartment for a photographer and his family, and a Loft for Joseph Kosuth and his staff. He is also involved in the creation of temporary installations and happenings such as the first Internet Pavilion at the Venice Biennale 2009, a water/rainbow installation for a public art exhibition in the Berkshires, a DJ booth for the Whitney Biennial 2008 and another DJ booth for Terence Koh's gallery Asia Song Society (ASS), and exhibition designs for the annual fund raising events at the Kitchen and HERE artist residency. He currently works on site-specific art installations, furniture designs, stage sets, interior projects in New York City, and a house in Miami.

From 2000 to 2005 he worked for Steven Holl Architects where he was in charge of exhibitions; he designed the furniture for a dormitory at MIT and was project architect of the award winning Loiseum Hotel Wine and Spa Resort in Langenlois, Austria. With Steven Holl he was also a co-professor at the Graduate School of Architecture, Planning and Preservation at Columbia University.

From 1997 to 2007 he collaborated closely with Robert Wilson, with whom he designed the traveling exhibition "Isamu Noguchi – Sculptural Design" for the Vitra Design Museum, the MTA subway terminal in Coney Island and many other permanent and temporary art and stage installations.

In 2000 he graduated from the University of Art and Design in Zurich with a project about the Menil Collection in Houston, after a formative year as a guest student in the Master Class of Wolf D. Prix at the University of Applied Arts in Vienna. At age 15 Christian started a four-year apprenticeship as an architectural draftsman and afterwards studied the architecture of Oscar Niemeyer on an extended journey throughout South America.
